Labour faces party crisis if nuclear reports are true

By John Groser Political Staff

Political Staff

While the Government refused yesterday to confirm or deny reports that Britain would soen explode a nuclear device at the test range in Nevada, senior ministers were preparing for the fury of the left wing of the Labour Party.

Regardless of the accuracy of the reports, Mr Mason, Secretary of State for Defence, will have to face stormy outhursts posible statement from Mr Mason about Government policy in this field. How, they will ask, does a nuclear pact with America affect Britain's membership of the European Community? What are the Implications for Europe?

Those MPs will refuse to accept assurances from ministers that the decisien to continue nuclear testing is ene of scientific policy. They believe that it is purely political and it have to face stormy outbursts from some of his nwn hack-benchers when he rises in the Commons this afternoon to make a statement on the matter.

Even if he denies that the underground test is to take place, Labour MPs will want to know how the report was leaked to the press and exactly what the Government's policy is. He will scarcely be able to deny that the last administra-tion made tentative arrangements last summer for tests on new warbeads for Polaris sub-marines to take place in Nevada this summer. Nor will he be able to deny that British scientists visited the Nevada test range last week. Britain does not maintain a permanent scientific team at the site and the visit, which lasted e few days, was specially arranged. Several private notice questiens bave been put down for Mr Mason about the reports of the proposed test, and a num-ber of MPs intend to demand an emergency debate.

If Mr Mason admits that the test is to take place I thus, by implication, also admitting that the nuclear policy established by Lord Carrington and the last Government is now heing pur-sued by Labour) the real crisis fer the Gevernment will lie not fer the Gevernment will lie hol at Westminster but with the National Executive Committee. W COAST

Why no car, including ours, can ever be called perfect.

Whatever impression you may have received to the contrary, every car is of necessity a compromise.

The characteristics that can make a car good in one respect tend to make it less good in others.

Economy sacrifices performance. Performance sacrifices economy. Technically, in fact, it is simply not possible for any car (even one costing £15,000) to be best at everything.

For £2,194, however, you can have a car that comes remarkably close: the Audi 100LS.

The economy car.

Broadly speaking, the smaller the car's engine the greater its fuel economy.

Which is why the 850 c.c. Mini manages to do 47.6 m.p.g. at 50 mp.h.

Surprisingly, the 1.8 litre Audi 100LS manages to do almost as well, returning 41.2 m.p.q.at 50 m.p.h. (both figures obtained by Autocar).

Compare the Audi 100LS with the five leading cars in its class and you'll find it averages 25% more m.p.g.at50 m.p.h.

Even at 70 m.p.h., Mini 850: 47.6 m.p.g. at 50 m.p.h. Audi 100LS; 41:2 m.p.g. at 50 m.p.h. the Audi 100LS returns $30.5 \,\mathrm{mpg}$, which is also 25% more than these other cars.

The performance car.

Most fast cars achieve their performance by virtue of their large engine size.

The 4.2 litre Jaguar XJ6 for instance, manages a standing start quarter mile in just 17.5 seconds.

The Audi 100LS, relying on engineering efficiency is only 1.2 seconds behind, despite the fact that the Audi's power unit is under half the size of the Jaguar's. (Comparison made by Jaguar XJ6 (A): standing start 1/4 mile: 17.5 secs. Audi 100LS (A): standing start 1/4 mile: 18.7 secs.

Autocarusing automatic versions of both cars).

if you look at the. Audis five leading competitors, all of them have larger engines. But only one of them has a faster 0-60 m.p.h. time than our 11.9 secs. (That particular car has to rely on a 70% larger engine, with all that means in petrol consumption).

The performance that comes from our engine, incidentally isn't achieved by straining it. Indeed, you'll find the Audi 100LS is one of the few cars that is able to cruise all day at maximum speed without straining the engine.

The spacious car.

The more room a designer allows for passengers and their luggage in a car, the longer that car tends to become. But the longer it becomes, the harder it can be to manoeuvre in town conditions.

The Rolls Royce Silver Shadow, for instance, gives its passengers a generous 6'0" total leg room, and 22 cuft. of boot space. But this results in a car that's almost 17 ft. long.

The Audi 100LS, though a full 22" shorter than the Rolls, actually offers you all but 4"as much legroom and 1 cuft more boot space.

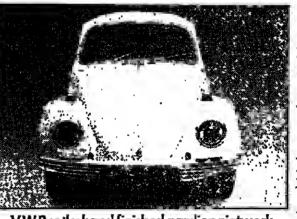

Within the Audi's own class, there is even one particular car that's 7" longer than ours, but offers you less total leg room and Rolls Royce: 6' 0" of leg room, 22 cu.ft. of bootspace. YOU less total leg Audi 100LS: 5' 8" of leg room, 23 cu.ft. of bootspace. less boot space.

Which shows that even if you buy a larger car you don't necessarily get any more room.

The practical car.

The danger of a sophisticated engineering design is that it can become impractical. And its owner ends up with a temperamental vehicle forever needing attention.

In the Audi's case, its engineering sophistication carries no such price. Its performance, for instance, is achieved without the complications of twin carburettors or fuel injection.

VW Beetle: hand finished acrylic paintwork. Audi 100LS: hand finished acrylic paintwork.

It only needs a full service, in fact, every 10,000 miles. At least two of the other cars in its class can only manage 3,000 miles between services.

You'll find that the Audi's paintwork resists rust in the same way as a Volkswagen Beetle (Both the paint and the application system are the same.)

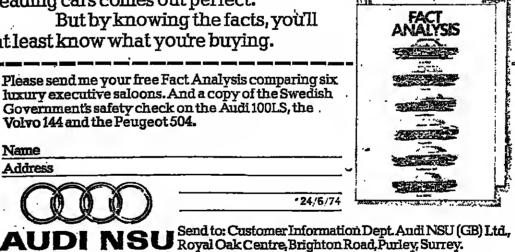

And as Audi and Volkswagen are linked companies, the same standard of after-sales service applies to both.

If you want to know the facts, send for the free Fact Analysis.

Send us your name and address, and we'll send you our special Fact Analysis. Using impartial data from the motoring magazines, it compares the Audi 100LS with the Ford Granada, the Peugeot 504, the Triumph 2000, the Rover 2200 and the Volvo 144.

You will find that none of these leading cars comes out perfect.

A national campaign on rates planned

By Christopher Warman Local Government

Continued protests la England and Wales about rate increases this year has encouraged the National Union of Ratepayers' Associations to call for a national effort to get rid of the present rating system.

The Union, which claims to represent about 500 associations and half a million ratepayers. says it has received a record oumber of inquiries from potennal pressure groups. At the weekend the union urgad ratepayers to make rates a major issue in the next general elecnon, and "to seize control of squandermania councils" in the next round of local government elections.

A meeting in London on Saturday of the union's central council unanimously endorsed a five-point plan it intends to put to the Government. The plen calls for the immediate elimination of the sewerage element of the water authorities charge on rural properties not connected to main drainage; a government inquiry into and an embargo on all hut essential new capital spending hy local authorities; an immediate increase in the Government's rate support grant, particularly to ease the burden on rural areas; the transfer to the national exchequer of that part of educational costs now horne by rates; and substantial reform of the present domestic rating system. The meeting also approved a call for a campaign to be waged at national and local level to gain a fairer deal for domestic ratepayers. As a result, local ratepayers' associations are to the urged to warn local political nations that there will actively he urged to warn local political parties that they will actively campaign against candidates in the next general election who do not publicly pledge themselves to support rating reform and also against those members of Parliament seeking reelection who have not actively shown support in the present House of Commons for such reforms.

Local associations will be en-rouraged to begin planning to secure the election of non-party political cate reform councillors at the cext district council and local elections. In the meantime, they will be advised to set up "vigilante" committees to attend council and council committee meetings to watch, and if necessary challenge, council expeoditure proposals.

Geneva, June 23 An appeal to the patriotism of officers in the Spanish armed or or cers in the spanish a new orces was made at a rally in .
Geneva today by Secora Dolores Ibarruri, koown as La Pasionaria, the president of the Spanish Communist Party.

She said that their annude was crucial if "inevitable" democraticchanges in Spainwere to take place with minimal violence.

tha military in Portugal, she called for an end to the "Civil War spirit" among Spaniards and for reconciliation between all political groups opposed to dictatorship.

Señor Santiago Carrillo, the party secretary general, called for rapprochement between the people end the military so that in Spain as in Portugal "children as in Portugal "children in Spain as in Portugal "children can put red carnations on the rifle barrels as e symbol of friendship restored "between Army and people".

Both speakers referred favourably to eGneral Diax Alegriz the former Spanish chief of staff Senhor Carrillo said that the general had been removed because his plans for modernizing the Army did not interest a democraticchanges in Spain ing the Army did not interest a regime that wanted the military only as e police force for maintaining internal order.

An estimated 12,000 Spaniards many of them from other West European countries, filled the Geneva skating rink for the rally. It was arranged by the Swiss Communist Party in cooperation with the Spanish Comunists.
The organizers were informed last week by the Swiss Government thet neither Senor Car-rillo, who came from Paris, nor La Pasionaria, who has lived in Moscow since 1939, would be Permitted to speak.

Tape recordings of their speaches were played instead.
Both came to the restrum afterwards to deliver short addresses. La Pasionaria, ber surprisalso sang a song of the Civil War era.

Women's Lib reaches churches

Unpredictable world The End of the

By Alastair Buchan (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, £4.25) For a quarter of a century the world has lived, uneasily, fearfully and often violently, by kind permission of the United States and the Sovier Union This precarious arrangement, referred to by political analysts depending upon their ideological and linguistic eccentricities. as the superpower condominium or the bipolar negemony, is now beginning to collepse.

Other nations and political groups are beginning to qualify for, if not openly to claim, the status of superpower. The Peoples Republic of China with a population of 800 mll-lion, the beginnings of a nuclear striking force, and a vast military apparatus to support it, launches violent assaults upon the neo-imperialism of the

Voice and Piano Aldeburgh Festival Joan Chissell

The three anniversaries celebrated in John Shirley-Quirk's song recital with Steuart Bed-ford in the Jubilee Hall oo Friday were Fauré, Busoni and Charles Ives, the last born in 1874, and the first two dying racely 50 years ago.

Fauré scarcely needs any special pleading; Mr Shirley-Quirk sang the Op 58 and Op 106 cycles with nice sensitive lyricism and left the music itself to do the rest. For Busoni and Ives, he and his pianist supplied just that little bit more, certainly enough to win the day for both composers. Busoni's Five Goethe Songs were outstandingly fine. Any previous suspicions that the cast of thought was cerebral. cast of thought was or the idiom second-band, were completely overcome by Mr Shirley-Quirk's humour in Lied des Brander and Lied des Mephistopheles his intensity in Lied des Unmuts and Schlechter Trust and his near-operatic range of expression in Ziegeunerlied.

Steuart Bedford in his turn emphasized the sinister unset

In the end they were the victims of a single goal and the drama of this is disrussed elsewhere as they this is disrussed elsewhere as they left the arena with a more than creditable 1—1 draw against Yugosjavia.

It was ironic that the Sents should depart the scene unbeaten in their sector while two others— Argentina and notably West Germany, the hosts, should now move on each with a defeat on their cards. The West Germans on Saturday night fell before a 60,000 house at Hamburg and a massive

So, too, are Brazil, the reigning holders and champions in three of the last four World Cup festivals. Although declined from their past pinnacles as an explosive entry, they are nature's force as footballers and may yet rediscover some fantasy. Without a goal conceded so far, it could be a battle royal when they come to face Cruyff, the flying Dutchman.

The potential of this Netherlands side is as plain as the poise of a mannequin. Every pass, every dovetalled switch of positions has a polished elegance that few teams in the world can match. How sad, then, that hose are models with dirty fingernalls. In apite of their superiority over stereotyped opponents, the Netherlands committed 29 fouls, most of them unprovoked and

They fid not read the small print.
They failed to readize from the start that the newcomers, Zaire, would be the catalyst of their

With hindsight, it is now clear

But it took almost half en hour and three yellow cards—shown to and three yellow cards—spown to Jansen, van Hanegem and Cruyff—before the Netherlands began to get the mostage. Thereafter only Deney was caudoned.

Discipline apart, the Netherlands' only weakness was the prodicality with which their finishing betrayed some wonderfully imaginative preparation. The fully imaginative preparation. The team has been built round two of Europe's most successful club sides. Ajax and Feyenoord, and the benefit is plain in the telepathic instinct for changing positions.

Rijsbergen, playing in only his fourth international, wax a conly composed central defender. Yet when Israel arrived as a half time substitute, Rijsbergen moved into midfield with equal facility. Surthler, normally a full back, judged his forays into the penalty area with the canniness of a Lawler. And Cruyff, of course, was Cruyff, midfigliagned, and was Cruyff-multi-talented and was cruyin multi-brentes au biquitous.

Nevertheless, a margin of only two goals, both from penaldes, at the interval was not endrely explained by Bulgaria's smothering explained by Bulgaria's smothering tactics in midfield, nor by a number of good saves by Stajkny, the second choice goalkeeper. Rensenbrinck, hrought back after being left out of the game against Sweden, and Ren frequently found themselves in front of goal, but were unable to apply the lest rouch. It was not until 29 minutes from the end that the Netherlands discovered lethal directness in the goal area. Then, a header dropped knee high in front of Rep, and before a defender could move, the ball bad flashed past Stajkov.

The best goal of all came three minutes from the end. Cruyff was given a good pass out oo the left end dropped e long, dipping centre into the gap between Bulgaria's defenders and de Jong threw himself to guide the ball but the net with a perfect beader. Totrenham Hotspur supporters, who saw de Jong at White Hart Lane, earlier this season, will know how menacing this man can be and may be surprised that he seems to get into the side only as a substitute.

Bulgaria go home with very little to console them. Early lo the match Boney, easily their host player, swung a free kick against the Dutch crossbar. Had that gone in we might have seen a different game. But evenually Bulgaria within a lont or two of carrying to the wight have seen a different game. But evenually Bulgaria had to rely on en own goal by Krol for game. But eventually Bulgaria had to rely on en own goal by Krol for their only score. Dener sprang the offside trap and to preventing the centre reaching two men running in from the right, Krol turned the in from the right, krd turned the ball past his goalkeeper.

Runs left in pitch for India to make

By John Woodcock.
Cricket Correspondent.
LORD's Indid, with all second limings wickets in hand; are 325 runs behind England.
The Lord's ground has been like en island to the sun for the second Test match against india, whose people have sought enjoyment and found it and nostalgia and indulged it. What is more, there are sill two days of the match to go, though if India are to Starvite for as long as that, they will need to bat very well.

With five minores left on Saturday evening India followed on 327 runs behind. They had, beeo bowled out in their first Lymings for 302. The pitch is still wonderfally good. After such a poor growing season, Jim Fairbrother, the groundsman, was uncertain when the match started that, the grass would be well enough rooted to hold together. But he need have had no fears. There are a lot of runs left in this pitch year if the Indians can so time and temper their game as to make them.

England have looked a good and. them.

England have looked a gond and purposeful side in this ment. I know Richie Benaud, considers them well capable of holding oo to them well capable of holding oo to the Ashes in the winter. On Saturday, too, there was only one captain oo the field. Denness, I think, is bringing the Flemhers and Greigs into his calculations more than he did, which is wise of him. He could be groud of the way Englend fielded. They were splendid. It is some time since they had anyone et short leg with such instant reactions as: Lloyd: Fletcher held a brilliant catch at stip, the ball travelling so fast as Patel flasbed at it, that not manyof the 25,000 people on the ground can have seen it to the air.

There were three catches at long leg, all off books well hit. Arnold's, from Ahld, was travelling at a speed to drill a hole through him had he missed it; yet. Underwond's second was, If any linderwood's second was, if any thing, an even better carrb, beld rolling over on the boundary below the Tavern boxes. Knott.

perow me lavern boxes. Knott, away to his right, also caught a blinder.

To the four for 20 be took in India's second innings at Old Trafford, Old added snother four rights. Trafford, Old added another four wickers. He had the opening pair when they were on the march, and two good wickers after rea, which put an end to any hopes the indians may still have had of saving the follow-oo. Hendrick did himself no barm, his action meeting with the approval of those who know what acdors ought to be. One of these was Bob Appleyard, whom Greig in his new style resembles. Appleyard, naturally interested in Greig, felt that what he would develop was a third pace, rather like a third gear, to add variety.

that this was a contest worth watching. Engineer was wildly entertaining. In the same over as Gavassar hooked Arnold's bodocerfor six. Engineer hooked another for four. The noise the Indians in the Mound Stand made at that, gave some small idea of what Eden Gardens sounds like in a Test match, with 100,000 people jammed together.

Observing it from her nest on the roof of the Grandstand was a seaguil. As the waves of sound came crashing against the cliffs below, she may have thought that this was not at all the peaceful basin that it was meant to be. Any more than those who came to watch the England side that had such a struggle in West Indies, can have expected to see them now in such striking form. It does not follow that it will be the same next week, but it show that they do, there is no better place to choose they can do it, and when they do, there is no better place to choose than Lord's.

At the end of three days like this, the result seems not to utanter much. I am not sure that I would think so if England had been on the receiving end, as they were when last they played a Test match at Lord's, against West Indies last August. We tend to become heavily serious when England ere duing badly. When, es now, they are doing well, and the lodians are not subdued, and there is hardly a cloud in the sky, and is hardly a cloud in the sky, and there is more than a football in the spording world. It is all that a let of people ask. CNCLAND: First Immere. 528 (7) L. Amites 188, J. H. Edick 50, M. M. an over of the match remaining.

Luckhurst and Johnson had begun cambiously and taken Kent to 32 when White, whose benefit metch this had been, caught and howled Johnson with the third hall or his first over, the tenth. An obscure amouncement had preceded Johnson's going: The dispute at Plesseys has been settled, and normal work will be resumed at 8:30 in the morning. The argument here was far from being settled, but there assumed little doubt that Kent, who have, shown themselves to be so adept at this type of cricket, would pace themselves to reach the rape first, and they did just that.

After Luckhurst had been taken for an excellent 52—a, skx, and seven fours—some splendid outcricket by Nottinghamstire led to Julien being rup out at 115 and well on slow clay to be backed with much confidence on grass (though, like Borg, she has acquired the useful knack of winning matches). It would be satisfying to feel that Virginia Wade could win the title for Britais. But in 12 attempts she has only three times reached the last eight and has never gone farther.

That is not an impressive course record. If forced to put money on someone. I would risk it on the tentative helief that Miss Goolagong can defy general expectation by regaining the rife she won in 1971.

The field-for the men's doubles is dazzling. Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan, twice champions, hold the WCT doubles title. But their opponents include Newcombe and Tony Roche (four times champion, who have also won the United States, Australian and French titles); Robert Lutz and Smith (former United States, Australian and WCT champlon); Connors and Nastase (the holders); Ashe and Roscoe Tanner (twice in the WCT playoff series and both yiolently effective on grass); Davidson and Rosewall (1972 Australian champions); and that maturing Australian partnership, John Alexander and Phillip Dent. ing the prize money by £44,700 to £57,000, the championships committee exaggerated injustice by putting most of the extra money putting most of the extra money into singles rather than doubles. These days there are sound arguments for dividing prize money enally between the two singles events on the one hand and the three doubles oo the other. Wimbledon have receded from that objective, rather than advanced towards it.

Another anacronism, the insist But other colours are widely used these days and the advantages outwelf the disadvantages. Wimble doo could have concentrated on the advantages and taken a discreet inlicative by demanding that each player should wear a single predominantly pastel shade (rather thao two-tone "separates"] and that each player in a doubles team should wear the same colour. Meantime it will be strange to watch a big event in which the competitors are all dressed in the old-fashlooed white.

Roche's racket arm is suspect and could let him down. Hewitt and McMillan should win.

It is difficult to envisage the defeat of Miss Casals and Mrs King should also share the mixed title with Davidson, with whom she has already won furee Wimbledons and three United States championships.

So easy for Lauda and Regazzoni in Ferraris

From John Blunsden

Zandvoort, June 23

Ferrari drivers, Niki Lauda and Clay Regazzoni, made it all look so easy here his afternoon as they took complete command of the 75 lap Outch Grand Prix. outs for these two colls from the mass of ante-post vurchers.

Apalschee is shortly on his way back to his native America for stud duties, and Cellini, well beaten last Tuesday at Royal Ascot by Averof, is now out of the reckoning. Perhaps no two colls from the same stable have in a matter of weeks fallen from the top of life pyranid su dramatically. They have not turned out Sir Ivors or Nijinskys.

Now the Irish tace an extremely formidable challenge from England and France in their hig race. The Derby runner-up, imperial Prince. Peter Walwyn's English Prince with Yves St Martin riding, and Jopiter Pluvius, are coming from England. From France, Caracalero (Lester Piggurt), and Missis sipian, first and fourth in the French Derby, will be in the field. The best the Irish can produce are the Irish 2000 Guineas winner, Furry Glen, Vincent O'Brien's Sir Perfo, and Retrieved; this does not look a dangerous trio.

Also on Saturday, in the northeast, in a different way, will have its top event: the dour slogging match between stayers uver the Ryan Price, who won the last race on the fourth day at Royal Ascot with King Levanstell, may start the new week with victories in the £2,000 Brighton Mile Handloap with Findun Lad, and some six huurs later take Wolverhampton's more modest Pattingham Plate with Invitation. During the four days of the Royal meeting the Queen bad no success, but her Carlton House ranaway with the Fenwolf Stakes on Saturday, and Highctere had raised the curtain for Royal Ascot in the Prix de Diane ar Chantily, in a style which might sppropriately be called majesti.

Peter Walnyn with the two-year-old, Red Cross, and the three-year-old, Red Cross, and the three-year-old. The prince and Royal Auro, took the training honours, although these three victories although these three victories amounted to over £18,000, just a little less than that of John Ounlop,

Time to draw new boundaries of fairness for elections

In the 1964 election an averancial transcations related to the Poulson affair are by comparison infinitesimally small. Estimates of the results of the 1964 and 1974 election did on ronsciously take account of the variation in the average size of the county and brough consti-tuencies. For fair elections in difference should not exceed he annual chansge by perma-nent boundary commissions.

Population changes can be fore-casted with reasonable accuracy and boundary changes made annually. This arrangement would be much more satisfac-tury for members of Parliament as those displaced would be faw in number and it should be easier for them to find new seats than under the present system as there are periodical upheavals and a large number of Ms are competing for vacant seats.

An indication of the results of the 1974 election, if it had houndary commissions should be established with the least possible delay so that in the future general elections in the United Kingdom are conducted in a fair way.

Many people were surprised by the result of the last general clection and they were again surprized when they examined surprized such as unfair system. surprized when they examined entitlement based on the electhe results in detail. In nn pretorates at election time, the Bnundary Commission have given the GLC 10 or more seats vious postwar election have the Conservatives obtained the most vetes without winning the most tno many in the last four elecseats. In the 1951 election the Conservatives received 231,000 area combined with the outer south-east area 10 or more seats fewer votes than Labour but they obtained 26 mnre seats. In 1951 Labour received support by 39.95 per cent of the total electorate but the youly phiatned 295 seats, age excess of 5,00 in the county scats compared with the averwhile in 1974 they received support from 29.29 per cent of the total electroraic and obtained 301 age for the borough seats in England gave Labour a lead over the Conservatives. With seats—although the Conserva-tives had 308,500 more votes. Labour obtained the largest number of lost deposits (28) of constituency boundaries based on equal representation the Conservatives would have had a conservatives would have had a lead over Labour, and possibly the Liberals would have held the halance. The financial implications of the unsuitable rules give to the Boundary Commisaggregated since 1964, the financial transcriptors related to number of lost deposits (28) of the three main parties. The Liberals received massive sup-port but they only obtained 14 seats, an overall average of 433,000 vntes per seat. In an analysis of the results the rules of the Bnundary Com-missions should be considered.

For bistorical reasons Scotland has a minimum of 71 seats, e minimum of 35 and Northern Ireland is under-represented with 12 sears. Sear entitlement has not bean adjusted to population changes. If a vote in Nortbern Ireland is taken as the unit, a vote in England is 1.37 units, in Wales 1.56 units and in Scotland 1.67 units. If the system of government of the United Kingdom was hased on applications of the United Kingdom was hased on the United Kingdom was has the United Kingdom was had the United Kingdom was equality of political rights for England should have 12 more all citizens in the four areas, seats. Northern Ireland 4.6 more aeats, Scotland 12.5 fewer seats and Wales 4.1 fewer seats.

dozen constituencies like the Western Isles. Orkney and Sheiwestern isles. Orkney and Sheilaod. Meriuneth and Argyll, which for territorial reasons need to be smaller than the resi, and which do not affect the balance of seats of the three main parties, constituencies should be based on equal representation.

All parties are unding in move in the direction of Lord Kilbrandon's report on the Coostitution and if the four areas of the United Kingdom are provided with assemblies there will probably be accounted. will probably be agreement that seat allocation should be based on population.

The must serious divergencies from the principle of equal representation occur within the four areas particularly in England. It was the aim of the Boundary Commission for England to create hurningh a ucounty constituencies of the same size, but it is impossible to do this if the general review of the Boundary Commissions takes place at intervals of not less than 10 and not more than 15 years. If, when new boundaries are introduced, the average electorate for the borough and county constituencies are the same, under the present statutory position it is possible that the average electorate for the county conituencies by more than 20,000 before the results of the next general review are implemented

Mr Benn's attempt is forthright and undisguised that nu one can doubt his intentions. Head high, banner unfurled in all its gaudy colouring, bugle sounding the bold call to march with bim, be charges forward. He may be reckless but he is not reticent. There can be no mistaking his goal.

Mr Healey, in contrast, is less flamboyant, more subtle and reserved. No silken flags him, no trumpeters, no glittering rhetoric as be enters the lists. If his challenge to Mr Benn is not universally recog-nized, that is because he is more discreet. They have the same objective, but differ both in manner and method of manner approach.

Mr Bonn's appeal to the left is based principelly on his insistent call to Labour to seize (in Aneurin Bevan's phrase) the commanding heights of the ecoopmy—to possess them by a brazen, authoritarian and un-restrained extension of public ownership, control and direction nf industry and commerce. Mr Healey has chosen a different platform from which to promote his claim to the leadership of left: eniblazoned above it are the words "Snak the rich In short, Mr Benn believes

Mr Renn or Mr Healey? Who that his purpose is best served will secure the leadership of the by preaching nationalization and restoring the venerable Clause IV of the Labour Party constitution to all its old prominence. Mr Healey prefers the prospective wealth tax.

Who will prevail? Much depends on Mr Michael Foot With the Labour left, Mr Foot enjoys something in the nature of papal power and influence. Presented with alternative courses of action for consideration, and assuming both to be doctrinally sound, Mr Foot will do what the Vatican would do. He will judge between them on grounds of practicality, asking himself which is the more realistic and potentially rewarding.

I foresee that Mr Foot will come down io favour of Mr Healey. Indeed be may already have done so, though be has not yer pronounced. As Mr Foot must realize, Mr

Healey's threat to soak the rich is unlikely to cost Labour many votes (though it will detach some), since most people are not rich. But Mr Benn's obsession with public ownership is quite another thing. There is no overwhelming or even substan-tial liking for what he is recommanding so strenuously, in spite of the provocative behaviour of a number of iodividual company longer for a particular bua. By chairmen, shamelessly lining its own admission, London their pockets while everyone else is expected to exercise restraint. in general, people do oor care for officialdom and have no wish to increase its intrusion into their working lives. So far from enlarging the bureaucracy, they would rather diminish it.

My conclusing is that Mr Benn will continue to collect the odium attaching to a generally odium attaching to a generally anpopular cause (bowever keen its adherents in the Parliamentary Labour Perty), while Mr Healey—glad to allow him the notoriety—collects the leadership of the left by the simpler, and electorally safer expedient of attacking the rich.

Both are militants—but one is cleverer than the other.

Mr Wilson bas no occasion nowa days to use public transport in London, nor has be relied on it for many years. This is just as well for his peace of mind, but not necessarily helpful to most of us. I wonder if he knows bow inadequate, chancy, weari-some and frustrating the bus and tuba services bave become. In my own experience (and. seldom travel during rush hours) it is not uncommon to wait 20 minutes or more for an tion of everyday life in London. There are many other elements. All are contributing to a disturbing decline in convenience and comfort and threatening the collapse of every sort of smenity, however humdrum or common-

Because Greater Lundon contains such e huge proportion of the population of England, its deficiencies, the dispiriting deficiencies, the dispiriting defects in its public services, and the deepening exasperation of its citizens can reasonably claim the vexations of London, not be-cause of its canital status but for the more workaday reason that it houses so many people who are being subjected to increasingly severe inconvenience (not to say expense) of a kind unknown in Penrith or Plymouth. Despite his romantic associa-tions with Huddersfield and Huyton, Mr Wilson has spent

But this is only one aspect of both as capital city and vast the strain and general deteriore urban concentration, are too numerous too delicate too interwoven and in edministration too costly, to be committed to the management of a local anthority, the GLG without supervision by one minister, as distinct from piecenical inter-vention in this or that sphere by various ministers.

Public transport, its cost and availability, is one consideration. This is related to the intolerable traffic congestion in central London (should private cars be: banned with necessary excep-tions?). It is also related to special attention. To say this is tions?). It is also related to not to overlook other parts of the another factor—the difficulty in country or to deny that they, too, recruiting staff for any public have their troubles. But for the service in London because of the present I am considering some of the exceptionally bigh cost of living, exceptionally bigh cost of living, mainly housing. Consequently there ere too few bus drivers, too few hospital workers, too few hospital workers, too few street cleaners. The results are apparent. we can see them every day.

Contrary to widespread public opinion, the "TA", oow known as the TAVR or Territorial Army Volumeer Reserve, seems to be again in excellent health and frequently living in such places as these rain-lashed moors or in the Nato battle line positions between East and Wast Germany.

It is almost precisely nine years since I wrote for this newspaper and from a camp of this to-date and fair. The reputation of the United Kingdom within the European Community will he diminshed if members of tha House of Commons are chosen the sad substance of 50 per cent disbandment. Now there is another, though perhaps lighter, shadow hanging over this summer's training camps. The TAVR now has about 60,000, some 50,000 of them serving in "committed" units which have definite mobilization tasks allocated to them amongst Nato forces in Europe. The remainder serve in the additional infantry battalions authorized by the last Conservative Government oo its return to power.

Many units, like the Duke of Lancaster's Own Yeomanry have arisen from the ashes of two Labour Government cuts in which they were first reduced to a sort of home guard status and then to suspended animatioo cadres of only eight nificers and men.

Three years after getting the go-ahead to reform, the DLOY, which thinks it is now entitled to a phoenix in its battle bonours, bas brou 10 85 per cent of its establishment of 400, with 100 per cent officer strength. Its bistory began, like that of all the veomanry tegiments, with norses and rich officers, bas gone through what the colonel-in-cities, the Queen, once called ricissitudes" during wh'in its members have been successively and successfully cavalrymen, infantrymen, gunners, tank crews and reconnaissance experts. Now they are soldiering as infantrymen with simple weapons and equipment and an "uncommitted reserve"

The TAVR Associations' claim that their force is cost effective is supported by all senior Army officers, particularly those who have seen reserve units take their places in Rhina Army. Many will go to the length of saying privately that they have the edge on a good many full-time conscripted units from other west Europeao nations. Certain technical arms, such as the Royal Engineers and the Royal Signals, would probably has be able to carry out their in Belfast, on the possible vato commitments at all with- future requirements for troops not be able to carry out their

In simple terms it is estimeted that a TAVR unit costs nested that a TAVK unit costs the taxpayer less than a quarter of the sum expended oo an equivalent regular one. The biggest items in Army hudgeting are the pay and allowances and various "perks" for men and officers and their families. Soldiers in the TAVR are paid for a total of about one month's work per year and do not re-quire married quarters, schools or elaborate barrack and welfare

Serving officers and NCOs in the TAVR admit that the surgery imposed by the Labour overnment in 1966 and again in 1968 was beneficial in many ways, eveo if it was painful at the time. The modern TAVR is half the size of the old TA, but it is clearly more efficient, with it is clearly more efficient, with ingreater demands made on training time and physical fitness, mandatory examinations for every stage of promotion, more support provided by regular instructors, more modero equipment, and a generally more serious attitude engendered rowards the realities of even towards the realities of even part-time military life.

With the danger signs which he nation bas received such s the Northern Ireland brink of a few weeks agn and other slides thwards anerchical aituations, the present members of the TAVR cannot believe that their potential to just provide reserve manpower could be underestimated by any sensible politician in the consideration of defence review.

What is now loosely known in military circles as the "Kitson theory" (the politically explosive ideas nut forward by Brigadier Frank Kitson, formerly commander of 39 Brigade in Belfast, on the possible for tropes to concentrate more on training and preparation for small counter-insurgency operations) is naturally occupying the minds of many Territorial officers. There is an acute awareness of the political implications of any suggestion that the TAVR might be used for such tasks as quelling political demonstrations in this country. It is well than the tasks as a country to the suggestions in the country. known that some politicians with influence in the Labour Party still mutter darkly about the use of the yeomany at Peterloo and try to project tha modern TAVR as a sort of private bodyguard for the aristocracy.

Its potential to belp in sudden

Its potential to belp in sudden emergencies was, however, demonstrated by a unit in Lincolnshire which turned out voluntarily on the night of the Flixborough disaster. At the Ministry of Defence, one is firmly told that there is no intention of ever mobilizing the TAVR for anything short of the immediata tureat of open war. Nevertheless the conditions under which it can be called out by Queen's Order are fairly elastic.

The Times cares much about its history and the editor thought this so important that he sent out two identical memos about it, in successive.

But how can you judge what might constitute source material for the historian of tomorrow? How about my old expenses forms, with their potent documentation of the rising cost of taxis? Or the unused story about a minor row between two minor politicians, which I left out of the Diary because it seemed boring at the time, but which might prove seminal? > This is a period when any British institution should go back to its roots to examine its effectiveness. Is the House of Commons what it started out tn be the protector of the welfare and interests of the people of Britain? Are the trade unions securing the prosperity and em-ployment of their members? Are our industrial and financial companies effectively maintaining the wealth of the nation. including the value of the savings entrusted to them? Any examination of what an institution was established to do is a process likely to lead to humility. After all, none of these institutions exist for themselves; they exist to serve he public.

> In our prime task, that of in-forming the public about news that has actually happened, The Times is now in a different coattion from earlier days. In the period before radio tha press. was the monopoly purveyor of oews. Now we are one of many newapapers and newspapers are: nne of several news media. The quantity of information available to any member of the public is very great; its quality is not alweys as gond as it should be, but most news in most media is in fact reliable.

What could be termed the post borse and semaphore prob-lems of actually obtaining the news are therefore much less. than they were. Yet there are other problems. One is to spot the news in the plethora of information; too many facts can be even more confusing than too few. Another is to avoid being manipulated by the news making skills of government. Watergate confirmed what all journalists know, that governments can lie country, through the and lie again when they ation of the public.

that it is not a campaign, as was the cultural revolution, of our-times they merely try to per-suade with half truths.

Yet it is not now information hut understanding which the public lacks. Even a few years ago most people felt that they lived in an intelligible world. Even war may he very alarming, but is in its own way a straight-forward activity, with a purpose which was summed up by Gen-eral MacArtbur, "in war there is no substitute for victory".

Few of us now feel that we understand properly the complex social and economic influences which appear so threatening. It is clear that the politicians do not, and there has been e steady decline in their confidence in themselves, let alone in public confidence in them. At the sight of the Treasury Bench one feels the same touch of sympathy that Gray felt for Etonians: "Alas, regardless of their doom The little victims play."

The job of a newspaper must be therefore to wrestle with this intractable and unpredictable political and economic material, to provide the information, both national and international, but also to my to master it. For a newspaper of public affairs, that is now the central task. We should all be bumble ebout our ability to do it. Plainly, if in the press we did our job better, the country would not be in the mess it is, or if it were in the same mess, would know better bow it got in and bow best to get out.

Yet what does not change in the mind of The Times, and bas not changed under all its proprietors and editors, is the belief that the freedom of the press the whole press and the freedom of Britain are indissolubly linked, so that one could not survive the other. Nor have we lost the belief that the first duty of a newspaper is to support the free institutions of the country, through the full inform-

Once Westminster (and Dublin) was obliged tacitly to abandon or indefinitely to postpone the atrategic end, the chosen tactical means—the power-sharing Executive in the North—would be

If the 1973 Act is tried again, with or without the "Irish dimension", it will break again. Because the notion of power-sharing, as a device to persuede Ulstermen to live peecefully together, is as con-tradictory in a devolutionary context as devolution itself is in e Uoited Kingdom context. If Pro-testaots and Catholics can be persuaded to live peacefully together, then the fundamental reason for the Border, for a divided Ireland, for the existence of the sub-state disappears, And Ulstermen know

Office of Lord Chancellor

From Mr Herbert Baron Sir, With reference to the second reading in the House of Lords of the Lord Chancellor (Tenure of Office and Discharge of Ecclesiastical Functions) Bill, which provides that in the event of a Roman Catholic being Lord Chancellor, the Queen in Council can make provi-sion for the exercise of all fuoctions normally performed by the Lord Chancellor, including patronage in livings, surely the legal doubt which has so long troubled constitutional lawyers as expressed by Lord Hailsbam, should not be conlined solely to Roman Catholics? That doubt has also been held as to Jews, namely, as to whather, a member of the Jewish faith could hold the Office of Lord Chancellor; indeed I well remember that in a apeech by the lete 1st Lord Reading, he said that, in his opinion, a Jew was legally coultled to be so eppointed. At one time e Jew was disqualified from being a Member of Parliament. That disability has ong since been recoved by legislation. Surely, therefore, the time is now opportune for the insertion in the Bill of s small amendment, Because the grant for the current year is based oo population figures for 1972, there are now 20,000 extra people living in Northamptonshire who are not recognized for grant purposes. When it is considered that their children are being educated in our schools entirely at the expense of local rates, with no grant assistance from central Government, it is not hard to imagine the resemment on the part of Northamptonshire ratepayers at he "more rought than just" distribution of rate support grant.

The decision of the Conservative Government in 1973 to pay more to the cities added the equivalent of 5p in the £ to the county precept and the action of the Labour Governtoent edded a further amount varying from 3.50p to 9p in the f to the precept for domestic ratepayers, with the result that dom-estic rates have gone up by 60-80 per cent, and io some cases 100 per

From Mr Denis Mahon

Sir, Mr Edgar Palamountain's somewhet simpliste contribution to the subject of whether or oot to include chattels in a wealth tax (June 22) is confined to considerations of ecogomic theory, and only one limited aspect of these. But the rapercussions in other fields, which ought to be accepted as of the greatest importance for any civilized society, could not fail to be both far-reaching and most damaging. The problem is therefore that of judgiog where ies the least irresponsibility. It is true, and doubtless has always been true, that some works of art are acquired solely for investment. But this is not true of the vast majority of the immense quantity of works of art owned by cinzens of the United Kingdom. To about of the United Kingdom. To shoot down an entire flock of birds for the satisfaction of winging two or three black ones in the debocle is scarcely recommendable.

Also the fact should be borne in mind that the very far from sirople nperation of acquiring works of art solely for investment is already at-tended by serious potential penalties arising from the multiple inherent risks (for instance, authenticity, con-dition, difficult disposability at the desired time at the desired prica, and many more). And even when the works themselves are of the bighest quality, the anticipated profit can very well evaporate and indeed turn into loss; in this concexion I would refer Mr Palamountaio to a well-documented article in the International Herald Tribune of June 18, eoritled "When an lovestment Goes Awry" and referring to the Paris market. It should also be pointed out that the acquisition of works of art may be, and often is in the case of small collectora in substitution for expenditure on consumer goods or ephemeral services, and is thus itself a form of saving. In addition, the recent seosible enlargement of the standards for the acceptance of works of art in satisfaction of estate duries provided just one ray of hope for the future of our public collections (whose purchasing funds bave never been adequate and are in these days still less so). On the other hand, the cultural losses to this country resulting from sales ahroad occasioned by a wealth tax would be huge and irreparable. Yet when the Socialist Government in Denmark introduced such a tax it wisely ex-cluded chattels (and this still holds

Figally, I should like to add a further point to those already indi-cated by members of the art trade concerning the highly speculative character and total administrative impracticability of valuation for the purpose of such a tax. The buge scale, repetitive character and the fact that valuations on paper are bound to be constantly gainsaid by resultant sales distinguish them radically from other forms of valua-tion and would render them a completely intractable proposition for all involved. Yours faithfully, DENIS MAHON, can the image or God inse its maleness? It seems to be the key question, one that emerges again and again as the Anglican Church goes through its current beartsearching on female ordination, a domestic English problem, and as a second ordination of the second ordination ordination ordination or the second ordination ordin more militant groups of women in all the churches abroad respond to the secular challenge of the inarting female membership. The rules of Christian living and the structures of the church were de-signed by men, but largely apply women's liberation movements.

During some of the theological discussion at the West Berlin consultation certain lines of approach emerged which could prove fruitful. An American theologian, Professor Nelle Morton, pointed nut that the early Hebrew name for God, Elinhim, was the combination of the name Elob, a female goddess, and Im, the masculine plural Hebrew suffix Yahweb lithe pure form of the corruption Jehovah) was, she sald, derived from the name of an earlier Samarian goddess. Yet usage has masculinized both; God In the Biblic and In worship is "he".

Biblical images of a female or an women's liberation movements. Everywhere Christianity is in a state of lerment on this issue. Some churches, like the Church some churches, the the Church Evpansion in other directions is under discussion. Io particular.

Expansion in other directions is under discussion. In particular, there is a demand for training facilities in sections of the industry not concerned with food production, such as landscape gardening. Changes in the method of financing the board should make this possible.

Some at least of the board's activities should now be eligible for grant from EEC funds, alfhough any money from this source is likely to be used to reduce Treasnry liability rather than as an addition to income. Exactly what will' be eligible is under discussion in Brussels.

It would be ldie to pretend that

It would be life to pretend that the hoard has succeeded in cover-ing all the ground that needs covering or that it has made contact with those who most need training. But it has made an impact on the agricultural scene that at one time appeared to be quite out of the question.

Looking back, it seems that some controversies were matters more of personality than principle. more of personality than principle. But there was one fundamental trouble; very few of those who thought that widespread agricultural training would be a good thing had a really clear picture of how it could be fitted in to the routine of the average farm or borticultural holding.

By industrial standards, farming it carried out in ridiculously small Paying lust it was another matter. The original training boards were financed by a levy on employers. Farming has a quite disproportionate number of small employers; tracing them and trying to collect from them proved equally disproportionate in the ratio of expense to benefit.

Things were quiet as long as the Government appeared to be paying. But when, at a time when farmers were facing some financial difficulties, yet another demand for money came in and the board's accounts showed that most of it was being spent on the machinery for its collection, the reaction was what might have been expected.

That is, as yet, snil it. Great excitement was caused in astronomical circles last year when two quasars which may be the most distant objects known to man were discovered. Those objects have been examined by radio, astronomers around the world, and in collaborative international venture the results of studies at 10 different observatories have been published in one article in Muture. different observatories have been published in one article in Nature. The two quasart are code named OH471 and OQ172, and they each have a redshift of about 3.4. The shift in the lioes in the visible spectra of the objects suggests that they are travelling at more than 30 per cent of the speed of light relative to our galaxy. Since a stronomers have found that a high redshift for high velocity of recession) indicates great distance, the quasars are probably the most distant objects known.

That makes the objects of great interest to astronomers and cosmologists trying to proba the nature of the Universe. Also, because of the great redshift, they can provide information about the nature of quasars which might be impossible to obtain from nature of jets.

The point is that the redshift

So far there have been no signs of a crisis. On the contrary, the monthly gold and foreign currency figures published by the Bank of England point to a continuing large gap between the trade deficit (between $700m and $1.000m a month, about £294m and £420m) and the identifiable financing. and the identifiable financing-that is, the reserve loss plus the proceeds of loans by public authorities with the Treasury guarantee.

It is this discrepancy which has fuelled rumours of some secret arrangement between the Arab governments and the British Government.

The discrepancy cannot be accounted for by purchases of gilts or short-term money market liabilities In the first quarter official purchases of gifts from abroad amounted to only £90m, while official acquisitions of shortterm money market liabilities were £150m. While significant, these sums

Producers want fixed copper price minimum

From Our Correspondent

From Our Correspondent
Lusaka, June 23
A fixed minimum price for copper seems the likely ourcome of a meeting of ministers from the world's four major copper exporting countries which opens in the Zambian capital of Lusaka tomorrow.

The four countries—Chile.

The four countries Chile. Peru. Zaire and Zambia who together form the inter-govern-mental Council of Copper Exporting Countries (CIPEC) are all concerned at the wide fluctuations in the price on the London Matal Exchange over the past few years and there are fears of a steep drop over the next few months. Chile bas publicly advocated establishing a minimum price, and informed sources here say the other three members will support the idea. The problem, however, over the next three days will be finding a way to and the finding a way to implement such a plan.

Although Chile, Peru, Zaire, and Zambia are the largest individual copper exporters, they are by no means the only ones and nothing they decide smaller copper exporting countries who are not members Thus, if world demand for copper should decline in the next few months, as experts believe, and there is pressure on the price to go lower than the minimum level, the CIPEC countries may have difficulty finding markets if they insist on keeping the price artificially will be binding on the many

The economy of each of the CIPEC countries is based very. heavily on copper earnings, and there would be severe effects on their internal affairs if sales were to drop.

The general opinion among informed sources here is that there will be an agreement on minimum price during the CIPEC meeting, but there are, egrave doubts about its longterm success. Other copper producing nations are expected to be invited to become members of CIPEC during this meeting. No reliable figure for the minimum price has been sug-gested, although it has been suggested in some quarters that something around the £800 at tonce mark is in the mind of some delegates.

Bill before Dail is designed to realize James Connolly's dream of a single trade union for all Irish workers

By R. W. Shakespeare

Legislation now being steered through the Dail, in Dublin, will it is thought open the way for the realization of a long-stand-ing Irish dream—the vision of men like Larkin and Connolly—the creation of a single trade this ideal is attained, but mean-time the legislation, which seems to be facing little apposi-tion either publically, or from Ireland's employers, could lead to e restructuring of the Irish unions which could change fundamentally their existing rela-tionships with those in Britain. Britain's building societies are involved in an argument with the Inland Revenue authorities which would cost them another film in taxes end, they maintain, force up the mortgage rate in the long term. .

The argument arose out of the Chancellor's Budget increases. Interest on savings with the societies is paid out with the tax already deducted, but to aava paper work, they agreed on a rate representing the average paid by investors individually. The problem now is that tax rates have gone up about 10 per cent since the Budget, and a larger proportion of investors have moved into higher tax brackets. Thus the composite rate of tax has risen from 23.5

What then is this crippling dispute all about? The docks company says that it requires 116 dockers to operate the grain terminal and that they should heenme a nermanem labour force working on a two-shift system. Its latest offer is that these men should work a 35-honr week, with five shifts each of seven hours, and that they seven hours, and that they should get £67 a week on the early shift and £71.25 a week when on the late shift.

when on the late shift.

These rates are broadly in line with those being paid at the Seaforth contaioer terminal, and they compare favourably with the average £50 a week oow being earned by Merseyside dockers along the whole water-front

Indeed, the cash rates seem no longer to be at the centre of the dispute and uoion negotiators bave, apparently, already recom-mended their acceptance. However, deadlock bas been reached over the insistence by sbop stewards, first, that the manoing scale should be increased to 148 importaotly, that the work at the terminal must be sbared on a rota system by all dockars employed in the port. This would involve same 7,500 men. It is this second point that is being most strongly resisted by heing most strongly resisted by the macagement. Ir would mean. the company says, that every man in the port-including those from across the river at Birkenhead—would have to he specially trained in the use of the grain terminal equipment.

Men would have to be continually moved around the docks, and there would be no permanent identity between management and workers at the grain terminal itself.

The stewards' case, of course. The stewards' case, of course, is that they are trying to oreserve job opportunities; pay rates, and working conditions for the whole of the port and that "hiving off" sections of the docks such as the grain terminal would weaken the position of men who remain on the older areas of the waterfront, The stewards' Insistence oo these manning arrangements these manning arrangements has, during the many mooths of negotiations, been strengthened by the fact that the management struck a similar bargain with them over the operation of the them over the operation of the new container terminal. This is now being manned on a rota basis by all dockers in the port. However, it is clear that the management is not at all happy about the way this system has worked out in practice and it wants to avoid any new commitwants to avoid any oew commit-

A settlement still seems to be a long way off, but even wheo this is achieved Merseyside will still be facing a hard struggle not only to wio back the business it bas lost, but to build up trade at the new termical to the levels needed to make it pay its way. There are already some gloomy forecasts that the operating costs are going to be far toe high to make this possible.

The threat to Merseyside is that unless it can resolve the problems with its dockers and then make the new terminal a success, the industries it was built to service will move out. This could mean the loss of up 4,000 existing jobs in the area, to say nothing of those that would come if the firms concerned remained and flourished.

Dry cargo owners see rates squeeze

Tanker owners are well accustomed to sudden shipping freight collapses, but there are indications that their dry cargo counterparts, having enjoyed a solid 18 mouths of high rates, are about to suffer as well. Transatlamic voyage rates last week fell to their lowest levels for nine to 12 months as owners suddenly lost their nerve and back-pedalled in the absence of any substantial charterer demand. Brokers tended to blame much of the losses on the summer—the traditional "silly season" of the tramp trades—and the gradual run down of United States grain shipments before the new harvest in late July or early August. Certainly there was little grain business to be bad and United States Gulf to Holland rates have dropped S5 per ton to $14 over the last few weeks. In the last seven days, Brazil to Continent grain shipments have dropped $9 per ton to 523.50. Similarly, the lack of grain cargoes, combined with the amount of ore/bulk/oilers (abo vessels) now available in the dry cargo trades, meant com-perition for Hampton Roads to Japan coal business was intense. By Friday, a combination bulker agreed to a part cargo at the equivalent freight of 511 for a full load. A rate such as this ce regarded as disappointing since our profit was slightly lower than that of the previous year, mainly – as so often before – because many factors entirely outside our control influenced the result.

The period has been one of unprecedented increases in coits at a time when statutory courted of prices did not permit these increases to be promptly or fully reflected in improved price levels. This situation was exagerated by the already low level of prices for ball and roller bearings being further depressed by the stremous competition experienced from overseas and from some local sources. Industrial disputes ar certain of our major customers further restricted production for lengthy periods and them after many years of excellent industrial relations we ourselves suffered a prolonged dispute with a section of our employees at the Bedfordshite factories during the second half of the year which adversely affected our performance.

climate for economic and industrial relations in the country.

The improvement in and modernisation of the Company's production facilities will continue as long as economic conditions justify the significant expenditure involved and provided the Company can see a reasonably satisfactory return on the money it commandly ploughs back into the business year after year.

The Company has again beneficed from the technology and support of the garent Company and has also enoyed the closest collaboration with its sister companies in Europe. This collaboration is not only of benefit to the Company but also ensures that our customers receive the highest standards of technical and commercial service.

There is no doubt that U.K. membership of the European Economic Community has made a significant contribution to the high level of co-orcharion that has been achieved.

The scripus problems which affected the level of co-ordination that has been achieved. The serious problems which affected the United Kingdom at the end of 1973 and in the early months of 1974 will not make 1974 an custer year than 1973 and many of the problems still person. The energy crisis and short time morking coused a serious serious not only to the Company but also to many of the restormers and the cushook for certain industries to which we are a major supplier cross in naturally, cause for concern.

industries to which we are a major supplier gives us, naturally, carrie for concern.

As the unprecedented inflation continues, the pressure on margins becomes increasingly severe and the best answer we can give to lo wink together, management allid labour, to improve prinductivity.

The co-operation of all employees during the period of restricted energy supplies was very encouraging. If a normal operating climate can be assured for just one year without severe interruption then much could be done to enhance the strength of the Company and to ensure its progress for the benefit of all.
